Taylor claims win in landslide victory

BY D.C. HARVILL
Gene Taylor handed the Democratic party a major coup Tuesday when, in a landslide victory over Republican Tom Anderson, he reclaimed for them the Fifth District congressional seat.

The Democrats had not held the post in the House of Representatives since losing it to Trent Lott 17 years ago.

Taylor, state senator from Bay St. Louis, took 65 percent of the vote to Anderson's 35 percent—nearly a 2-1 margin. The unofficial final count in Tuesday's runoff election was 83,093 votes for Taylor to Anderson's 44,430.

"Ya'll did a great job," an emotional Taylor told the approximately 3,000 supporters gathered at the Biloxi Beach Motor Inn in Gulfport.

Anderson, 43, a former chief of staff to U.S. Senator Trent Lott, conceded defeat at about 8:30.

Anderson and Taylor were vying for a runoff election for the position left vacant by the death of U.S. Representative Larkin Smith, who died in an August 13 airplane crash.

Taylor ran for the position against Smith in November, losing with 42 percent of the vote.

"The days when the power brokers decide who's going to Washington are over. I think we sent a message that the citizens determine that, not the power brokers in Washington," Taylor told the crowd.

Anderson had drawn endorsements from Lott, Smith's widow, Sheila, and President George Bush.

Taylor, 36, campaigned as a common man who was running on his own credentials as a former Bay St. Louis city councilman and a state senator.

In the October 3 special election, which included Democratic Mississippi Attorney General Mike Moore, Taylor took 47 percent of the vote to Anderson's 37 percent and Moore's 21 percent.

After conceding the election, Moore threw his support to Taylor.

In that election, Taylor carried the Hancock, Harrison, Stone and Jackson Counties. The remaining seven and a-half counties in the district went to Anderson.

Tuesday, Taylor carried all but Wayne County, where he had 1,770 votes to Anderson's 1,997.

"I had an extraordinary amount of help. I am so grateful for their hard work. I think it helped that we ran a clean campaign," Taylor said after his victory speech.

"Going into the election, we felt like I would win—but didn't expect such a big win," he said.

Wednesday morning, Taylor stopped at several locations along the Coast, including the Regina plant in Long Beach and Ruth's Bakery in Bay St. Louis, to meet with and thank his supporters.

Candidates have only three weeks to wage campaign for Taylor's seat

BY D.C. HARVILL
The special election for Gene Taylor's state senator seat has been set for Nov. 7, giving candidates only three weeks to mount a campaign.

Late Wednesday afternoon, Governor Ray Mabus issued a writ declaring that Taylor's successor will be selected during a special election already set for that date to choose a district attorney for Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties.

Had the governor not signed the writ Wednesday, the senator's election could not have been held with the district attorney's because, according to Mississippi law, an election cannot be held less than 20 days after the governor signs the writ.

Taylor had to submit his resignation from the senate before the governor could set the special election. The resignation was received by the governor's office late Wednesday afternoon.

If necessary, a runoff election will be held Nov. 21.

The deadline for qualification will be 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Candidates for the state senate must be at least 25 years old; have been a registered voter of the district for which the election is being held for at least two years and of the state for at least four years.

There was much speculation in Hancock County Wednesday about who might run for the position. Several names came to the forefront as potential candidates.

"No, I don't think I want to run. I would lose my seniority and committee chairmanships. I think I can best serve the people of Hancock County by staying where I am," State Representative J.P. Compert said of Bay St. Louis.

Former Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Franckiewicz said Wednesday that the office left by

Skeleton identification expected within days

BY DENA BISNETTE
An identification on human skeletal remains is expected within a few days.

According to Sheriff Ronald Peterson, several possible identifications are being checked.

The skeleton, found be a logging crew from Alabama working near Highway 607 in western Hancock County Oct. 10, was examined by a Hattiesburg pathologist, Dr. Edward Waldrup, Peterson said.

Waldrup's examination indicated that the remains are of a male caucasian 65 to 70 years old or older, with a slight build and white hair about an inch long. He was five feet, five inches tall and probably weighed 120 to 130 pounds.

The pathologist found evidence of nose and rib fractures, severe arthritis in the man's neck and back, and the possibility that some of the man's vertebrae may have been fused.

The dead man had also had no teeth for some time.

The pathologist's report said the man had been dead for 12 to 18 months but no longer, the sheriff added.

"Right now, our investigation is centering on making an identification," Peterson said.

The remains were found about 100 yards from the highway on land owned by International Paper Company. They were about 50 feet from a paper company road, but animals had scattered some of the bones and the logging crew's harvesting machinery damaged part of the skeleton.

Because the Mississippi Forestry Commission confirmed that there had been a wildfire in that area last year, investigators believe the body had been dumped there since that time because it had not been burned, Sheriff's Department Investigator Delbert Seay stated shortly after the find was reported.

Three pieces of clothing, a Van Heusen shirt, a pair of Sans-A-Belt pants and a pair of men's briefs were found in the same area as the body, but no

Mock disaster planned for one day next week

BY DENA BISNETTE

Next week, there will be a disaster in Hancock County—a drill which is being set up to help the county's emergency service agencies find out how prepared they are to deal with the real thing.

Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin met with heads of local law enforcement, fire, ambulance and other emergency services Tuesday morning to brief them on the parts of the drill which are not going to be a surprise.

Boudin said dispatchers will announce the fact that the drill is only a state and federally mandated disaster preparedness exercise.

The drill is expected to take place during morning hours and will be immediately followed by a critique meeting. Observers from the State Civil Defense office, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and other organizations will be on hand to help determine what improvements may be needed, Boudin said.

Some local department heads may monitor the drill by making themselves unavailable for participation, but which ones will not be determined until the day of the drill.

Activities are expected to take place at more than one location. Emergency vehicles will be using lights and sirens but will not go over the usual speed limits in response to calls included in the drill.

Boudin praised the improvements made as a result of past drills, the most recent of which included a mock train derailment, radioactive material and a simulated apartment fire with explosions involved.

He said volunteers from the senior citizens center at the Valena C. Jones building will again participate by acting as injured disaster victims.

NASA issues ASRM environmental fact sheet

Officials at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center maintain that test firings of the planned Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) will not harm the environment or cause health problems in surrounding communities. An information fact sheet addressing issues raised by some area residents has been developed by NASA in response to these concerns.

The fact sheet points out that NASA is convinced, based on the best scientific and technical advice and evidence available, that this test program can be conducted at SSC without any significant detrimental effects on the local environment.

The fact sheet is available by calling the NASA Public Affairs Office at 601-688-3341 or by writing to: NASA Public Affairs, John C. Stennis Space Center, MS 39529-6000.

The complete text of the fact sheet follows:

The Advanced Solid Rocket Motor

Program at Stennis Space Center

PURPOSE

The Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) program is essential to the continued launch of the Space Shuttle into the year 2000 and beyond. Use of the redesigned motors in the shuttle program in the mid-1990s will greatly improve flight safety, reliability, and performance.

LOCATION:

Stennis Space Center in Hancock County has been selected as the new site for testing of the rocket motors. The test facility and associated easement area cover over 139,000 acres which provide adequate protection from the noise and effects of testing on the outlying communities.

The ASRM program further cements Stennis' role as the nation's premiere test facility for large propulsion systems development testing and establishes SSC as the test center for all testing and flight certification of the Shuttle's propulsion system.

DURATION:

Proposed testing of the motors is scheduled for late 1992. Eight motor tests are scheduled for the first two years, followed by two tests per year thereafter. Each test will last about two minutes.

RESPONSIBILITY:

The tools and technology are available to properly manage the program for compliance with all regulations. Human health and the environment will be protected and maintained.

NASA is committed to protecting the people of this area, the natural beauty and ecology of the area, and the environment in which we live and work. NASA is morally and legally responsible for actions related to the testing.

Taylor is "something that I'm looking at."

"But I'm in school and would have to miss every other semester when the legislature is in session, so it is a longshot," Frankiewicz said.

"I've had a few phone calls asking if I would be interested. Frankly, I am flattered, but we have a lot going on in the county right now. I just don't know. I'm going to have a long talk with my husband tonight," Hancock County Supervisor Lisa Coward said.

"I'm considering it but not to the point that I am going to say I will run. If I find the ground support isn't there I'm not going to," said former State Representative Earl "Buck" Ladner, who lost to Taylor in a bid for the senate seat.

"I haven't ruled it out," said Stephen Benvenuti, who lost a bid for the state House of Representatives by 22 votes in 1983.

Hilda Bourg, Hancock County Recreation Director Hilda Bourg also was among those mentioned as potential candidates. She was unavailable for comment.

ON PATROL

ROBBERY

A Bay St. Louis man has been arrested for a robbery at the corner of St. Francis and Sycamore.

Arrested is Paul Garrett, 25, 601 Sycamore Street. He, along with two others, is charged with grand larceny and simple assault. His bond was set at $5,500.

The three subjects allegedly beat Johnny S. Weston of DeLisle on October 7 and took a gold chain from him, according to Bay Police Detective Tom Burleson.

Garrett was arrested Friday afternoon, Burleson said.

Escaped prisoner remains at large

BY DENA BISNETTE

Authorities are still seeking a prisoner who walked away from the Hancock County Jail a week ago.

Haskell R. Miller, 27, had trusty status and was serving two consecutive one-year sentences for burglary when he escaped, Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Nathan Hoda stated.

He said Miller was due to be released soon and is not considered dangerous.

Hoda added that because Miller is from the Gulfport-Biloxi area, it is possible he might have gone there.

Miller is described as a white male with a stocky build and a fair complexion, five feet, 10 inches tall and weighing 155 pounds. His hair and eyes are brown and he has a tattoo of an eagle on each arm.

When last seen, he was wearing white pants and a brown tank top.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Hurricane Jerry changed the plans of many people along the Gulf Coast area this past week. The 'Work Day at the Track' had to be cancelled because of wet conditions.

The event has been rescheduled for next Saturday at 1 p.m., and it is hoped there will be a good turnout of volunteers.

The main object for Saturday will be to level the shoulders of the one-half mile fitness track and to plant winter rye.

I saw Betsy Ashman on Monday, and she said she has 100 pounds of seeds in the trunk of her car ready to be planted.

The track is well used. I even saw someone exercising during Friday night's showers.

So, do not forget to mark your calendar for Saturday afternoon for the 'Work Day at the Track'.

We were very fortunate that Hurricane Jerry changed directions and went another way.

Preparations were underway by our Civil Defense in case the storm would have struck this area.

On Saturday morning Bobby Boudin, Civil Defense director, held a briefing with Hancock County Supervisors and officials from both Waveland and Bay St. Louis just in case the storm would come our direction.

One thing is for sure, even the best weather forecasters cannot tell exactly where a storm in the Gulf will strike land.

It is good to know our officials are prepared in case we do have a storm strike the area.

On Friday night, the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws will journey to d'Iberville to play the Warriors.

d'Iberville in previous years has always been in the District VIII 4-A title picture, but this year, the Warriors have not been doing too well. This doesn't mean that the Rocks should take them lightly. This game depends on whether Stanislaus will be in the district playoffs.

Last week St. Stanislaus defeated the high-flying St. Martin Yellowjackets whose only blemish was a defeat to the higher-flying Hawks of Hancock North Central.

d'Iberville will have the home field advantage over Stanislaus and would like to play the spoiler, so the Rocks need to really be ready for Friday's game.

This Friday the Bay High Tigers will play host to the St. Martin Yellowjackets who have a 5-2 record, and it appears it will be another long night for Tiger fans.

In last week's action the Tigers did score two touchdowns in a loss to a strong Stone County team.

Bay High could pull an upset with a few good bounces.

The Pirates of Pass Christian, like Bay High, has taken some bumps this season and will travel east to visit the Long Beach Bearcats.

The Pirates could bring a victory home, even though they will be playing at Long Beach.

The Hancock North Central Hawks, with a perfect record, will play Wayne County in their first contest with the new school's football team. The away game was added to the schedule on an open date for the Hawks.

I am sure the Hawks will be looking down the road to the District play-offs in which they will be a host team this year.

The Coast Episcopal Raiders have also taken some bumps this season and will be playing host to Parkview Academy of Port Sulphur, La. Saturday at the St. Stanislaus stadium.

Coast would like to close this season with a victory this week, as it is the last game of the season.

The teams need good fan support, so go out and support the team of your choice.

The Annual Hancock County March of Dimes Walk-America is scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday at the foot of the Bay St. Louis bridge.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m., according to Betsy Ashman, chairman. The walk will be to Buccaneer State Park, and lunch will be provided for walkers.

We hope everyone will support the March of Dimes fundraiser, and remember, there will be special prizes donated by merchants in addition to the lunch.

We know Sheriff Ronnie Peterson will be out there walking along with many other volunteers.

Do not forget, the Chamber of Commerce's Business after Hours will be held Friday from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Waveland Resort Inn.

The event is sponsored by the Waveland Resort Inn which will provide hors d'oeuvres and cocktails at poolside.

The event is being held at that time of day to enable chamber members to attend and they are urged to invite a nonmember.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Parent feels Gulfview is neglected by school board

What's the matter with our Hancock County School Board? Aren't they supposed to show interest in our schools?

We had open house at Gulfview Elementary last week. Only Mrs. Sones showed up.

We were given booklets about the schools, or should I say school. It was mostly about Hancock North Central. Don't our other schools deserve to be recognized other than an address?

We do not share their school colors or symbol. We have our own blue and white and the bulldog. We, too, have computer programs. We have a Beta Club. We have athletics. We have a great school. So next time, don't forget us.

ASRM opponents, supporters should opt for civilized dialogue

To the Editor,

If you are as concerned about the testing of ASRM (Advanced Solid Rocket Motors) at Stennis Space Center as I am, then you have certainly attended at least one meeting.

I just wanted to state my disappointment at those who opposed ASRM testing. I know of several people who want to now more about the good or the bad aspects of ASRM, but are more inclined to listen to a sober, level-headed exchange.

I feel that those who are so emotionally involved should consider that there are citizens who want to now the basis for their concern, and they should stick to facts rather than outrage.

Please help those of us who are concerned, but consider the method before exercising your madness.

'Three seek D.A. office,' reminds candidate

To the Editor,

On the 10th day of October, the Mississippi Gulf Coast Chamber of Commerce presented a political forum for District Attorney candidates on Channel 25, in which I participated. The Sun Herald reported the event and pictured my two opponents.

I do not wish to complain, but I do believe that the Sun Herald or any other publication should give me the same consideration that is given to my opponents when a public event is being reported.

I can assure each and every citizen of Harrison, Hancock and Stone Counties, that I am very serious about my campaign and it is my intention to work very hard to be your next District Attorney.

Sincerely
Robert M. Acevedo

Resident harassed by Waveland officer

To the Editor:

I, at this time, would like to register a complaint regarding one of the officers, whose name is known to the Waveland Police Department, not the department as a whole.

This officer and I had a personal disagreement over five months ago. Since that time, this officer has chosen to use his badge to abuse his authority and to harass not only me, but many other respectful citizens.

I have been pulled over by this officer twice for no reason good enough to be charged or written a citation. He has made threatening phone calls on my home answering service for my family and me to hear.

These threat calls were not only vulgar and derogatory, but also contained serious death threats. Recordings of these death threats are in the possession of and/or heard by the Waveland Police Department, the Sheriff's Department, the FBI and my attorney.

Is this the kind of officer the citizens of Waveland can count on to protect and serve them, or will he continue to harass and humiliate us now that he knows the boundaries of what he can get away with? If he gets away with this type of conduct, will others do likewise?

Respectfully submitted,
Clayton A. Stieffel
Waveland

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor Ray Mabus

Governor Mabus getting high marks on his pitch at meetings

Gov. Ray Mabus is getting high marks on his pitch at town meetings around the state for a major new education program aimed at giving Mississippi a "world class" school system by the year 2001.

Certainly this reporter has not heard Mabus speak with such evangelical fervor as he did at the meeting here which I attended. I've picked up that same reaction from lawmakers who have heard him elsewhere.

There's a feeling coming out of the meetings, however, that Mabus may have been preaching mostly to the saved—people connected with education in some way, or those who are already sold on the need for a better education system.

For more than a year, Mabus has been laying the groundwork for what at first had been called Education Reform Act II. Mabus has labeled the new program "Mississippi's BEST," an acronym for "Better Education for Success Tomorrow."

Among the goals: to cut in half the school dropout rate, and the teen pregnancy rate, eliminate most adult illiteracy, provide a pre-kindergarten preparation program and increase student performance assessment at all school levels, including higher education.

Many lawmakers are concerned that after months of buildup, Mabus is still talking in terms of general goals—laudable as they may be and as passionately as he has articulated them—rather than providing some specifics on how he proposes to accomplish those goals.

Mabus has said that the purpose of his roadshow, as well as several hundred talks which friends of his administration and staffers have made around the state, was to gather input from parents, business people, community leaders and educators for legislation he will unveil the end of October.

One lawmaker who said he has seen a preliminary draft of bills prepared by Mabus staffers charged that the proposals were lacking in substance.

"They've had all these meetings and they've been talking, but it appears to me they haven't done any listening," declared Sen. Irb Benjamin of Rienzi, the Senate Education chairman.

Benjamin said, "From what I have seen, it doesn't look like it (the draft package) has enough substance for what they are proposing. There's a big difference between what's in the package and reality."

The biggest item in Mabus' preliminary legislative program, Benjamin said, is a $51 million teacher pay raise. "If you are just going to raise teachers' salaries, it is going to be a tough thing to sell unless you can hook on to academics," he declared.

But the Senate education chairman, whose committee is working on its own reform package, said he was glad that Mabus' draft proposal "is at least not set in concrete. They are keeping an open mind about it."

Benjamin said from what Mabus has said thus far, he is expecting the governor to call a special session of the Legislature in December to consider the education program, reminiscent of the Pre-Christmas special session in 1982 which enacted the Education Reform Act.

"If it takes them (the Mabus Administration) a year or a year and a half to write a program, how are we expected to do it in a few days in the Legislature?" the Northeast Mississippi lawmaker asked.

House Speaker Tim Ford said Mabus had told him that if a special session is called, it

Update

EPA assesses Bay Tech $19,000 fine for subsidiary's violations

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Environmental Protection Agency has fined Bay Technical Associates $19,000 for violations of the Clean Water Act committed by a now defunct operation: the company owned in Slidell.

Earlier this year the EPA found that Tectonics Services Inc., a printed circuit board plant, wholly owned by Bay Tech, had been dumping untreated rinse water containing the heavy metals, chromium, copper and nickel into Bayou Bonfouca in Slidell.

Bay Tech, a computer peripheral development and assembly company based in Bay St. Louis, could have been fined up to $25,000 for the violations.

Tectonics had been in existence for 15 years, but was purchased by Bay Tech in 1987 to supply one component for their Bay St. Louis assembly operation, the company's president Chuck Ramsey said when interviewed about the violations in May.

"Until we found out about the violation from EPA we thought Tectonic was in compliance....

"We shut the plant down immediately. I didn't want to be closely involved in anything with an EPA violation. We dismantled the operation and removed all the equipment within a week. It won't pollute anything again," Ramsey said.

Before the action, he had considered relocating Tectonics to Bay St. Louis, Ramsey said.

FIREFIGHTERS ATTACK a blaze at the former Sands Motel on US-90. The fire destroyed one apartment on the west side of the building and damaged the adjacent room at about 7:45 a.m. Tuesday, according to Albin Zoerner, assistant chief of the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department. Assisting BaySide were East Hancock and Clermont Harbor volunteers and Waveland Fire Department. Zoerner said the cause of the fire, which injured no one, is being investigated by County Fire Marshal Jay Marsh.

Walking Track work rescheduled

'Work Day at the Track' has been rescheduled for Saturday, Oct. 21 at 1 p.m.

Individuals, families and civic groups are requested to bring rakes, shovels and wheel barrows. The county recreation department intends to plant rye grass to maintain the shoulders during the winter months.

Refreshments will be served by the Bay-Waveland Rotary Interact Club. The rye grass seed is being donated by Hancock Insurance Agency.

This constitutes Phase I of the Hancock County Fitness Track Beautification Project sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, the Bay-Waveland Garden Club and the Hancock County Department of Recreation.

There will be a 'Halloween Masked Fun Walk' at the track on October 28 at 3 p.m.

'Business After Hours' hosted by chamber on Friday evening

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce 'Business After Hours' will be Friday, Oct. 20 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Waveland Resort Inn.

Business After Hours offers chamber members a unique opportunity to meet, talk and exchange business cards with other chamber members. Business After Hours is being held at the time of day that offers members an opportunity to participate.

The Waveland Resort Inn is providing hors d'oeuvres and cocktails plus an invitation to review their newly remodeled suites.

All chamber members are urged to invite a nonmember and attend this enjoyable event sponsored by the Waveland Resort Inn.

Concert proceeds to help beautify Bay Middle School

Proceeds from a Bay St. Louis Business Association "Concert in the Park" Saturday will be used to help beautify Bay Middle School.

The concert, set for 6 p.m. until 9 p.m., will feature Guitar Bo and Miss Dee.

Association members will sell barbecue ribs, Cajun sausage, beans, cornbread, soft drinks, beer and nachos. Those attending may bring tables and chairs, plates and other dinner items.

Because the concert will have a Halloween theme, spectators are also invited to bring jack-o-lanterns and wear costumes.

Plans for the beautification project have been provided by architect Kevin S. Fitzpatrick and will be available for viewing at the concert.

A Christmas caroling concert is being planned for December.

Mabus

would not come until six weeks after the governor's education package is drafted and made available to lawmakers.

"There's no emergency," Ford said, "I don't see why it can't wait until the regular session in January, and if we go through the regular session and he needs to, he can call a special session right after that."

Ford admitted he was displeased with the way Mabus has "kept us in the dark" about what he is going to propose. "I don't think we're going to rubber-stamp anything they bring in here," the 37-year-old House speaker declared.

Mabus has told him, Ford said, that there will be a "funding mechanism" included in this education package. "In my book, that's a tax," Ford said.

No price tag has been put on his Mississippi BEST program by Mabus. Ford said he had heard one estimate of $200 million, including $80 million increase for higher education.

Disaster

"Hancock County is definitely on the way up," said Boudin.

Due to the threat of Hurricane Jerry, Boudin had called an emergency meeting of Waveland, Bay St. Louis and Hancock County officials to prepare for the possibility of a storm.

"It was the first time since I've been here, 12 and a half years, that we had representation from all three entities," the civil defense director added. He commented that additional people who did not attend were within radio contact.

"We haven't really had a disaster yet where we've had to work together for days and days until our resources just run out. That's how you find out if you're a 10," he said.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

When you "goof" in the kitchen, don't panic, just improvise and smile, smile—and pretend that's the way you meant to cook the dish in the first place! That's my motto, and that of many another seasoned veteran of kitchen mishaps, large or small, throughout the years of cookery.

And, from these misadventures, many a tasty dish is born! Once, years ago, when a chocolate soufflé collapsed at the moment of serving, I had the "nerve" to smile and dub it my "Fallen Angel Soufflé"—serving it with a cloud of whipped cream, topped with hot fudge sauce making a delicious pool in the sunken middle of the soufflé—can you believe it?

And, we all know the origin of pommes soufflées—soufflé potatoes—that famous dish created when the French fried potatoes had cooled off too soon and had to be reheated and rescued. And so on and on all through history.

Such as that very traditional French dessert—Tarte Tatin—this delectable upside-down apple tart was created more than a century ago in the French countryside, where two sisters operated a restaurant.

One day, one of the sisters,

Mademoiselle Tatin, while busily engaged in making an apple tart, somewhat absent-mindedly forgot to put the pastry dough under the fruit, as is customary when making the usual pastry tart.

She had already sautéed the apples with the sugar, and put them in the tart pan, when she realized her mistake. And, since the customer who had ordered the apple tart as a finale to his meal was awaiting his dessert, and there was no time for Mlle. Tatin to start all over again, she simply flipped the dough, put it on top of the cooked fruit—and flipped the tart over when it was done! And, so the story goes, the upside-down apple tart found its place in culinary history, and is a classic dessert in France, ever so simple and tasty. Here's:

TARTE TATIN (Upside-Down Apple Tart)

Pastry or dough:
1 cup sifted flour
3/8 tsp. salt
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 lb. butter (1 stick)
3 Tbsp. ice water
Sift flour, salt and sugar into bowl. Cut in the butter with a pastry blender or two knives. Add the water and toss lightly until a ball of dough forms. Chill for an hour.

Filling:
3 cups peeled, sliced apples
1/2 cup sugar
6 Tbsp. butter
Using part of the butter, grease a deep (9-inch) pie plate. Sprinkle with approximately three tablespoons of the sugar. Arrange the apples in layers, dot with the remaining butter and sprinkle with the remaining sugar.

Roll out the pastry, and cover the apples with it. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for half an hour, and let cool 5 minutes.

Very carefully invert on the serving plate, so that the pastry is now underneath and the apples are on top. Sprinkle with sugar, and place under the broiler briefly, just until the sugar is lightly browned. Cool a bit before serving.

One cook of my acquaintance embellishes this tart by spreading a mixture of butter and brown sugar over the bottom of the pie plate, then pressing pecan halves into the butter-sugar combination, before adding the apples, and covering with the pastry.

High fiber meals encourage good health

By Nelda Starks
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

As scientific studies point to the benefits of high fiber diets, health-conscious people are concentrating more on identifying and eating high fiber foods.

Studies have shown fiber helps reduce weight, relieve constipation, control diabetes and lower cholesterol levels. Recent research shows that eating fiber, especially insoluble fiber, helps prevent colon/rectal cancer. A diet high in fiber helps prevent or relieve diverticulitis, an infection in the large intestine.

Dietary fiber is roughage. Unlike other foods, it doesn't break down when it enters the body. Even though fiber is not absorbed and digested, it does play an important part in the body's digestive system. Fiber is found in plant leaves, stems, fruits, tubers, roots and seeds.

Fiber can be classified into two groups: soluble and insoluble. Insoluble fibers are found in the outer layers of cereal grains, the tough parts of vegetables and in the skin and seeds of fruits and vegetables. This kind of fiber is not affected by digestion and passes out the body completely unchanged.

Soluble fiber is partially changed by digestion into a kind of gel. This slows the rate of food absorption so that you feel full longer. Soluble fibers are found in fruits, beans and oats.

The soluble fiber found in oats and mature beans seems to be more effective than insoluble fiber at lowering cholesterol. Recent research indicates that every 1 percent drop in the level of cholesterol in the blood leads to as much as a 2 percent drop in the incidence of heart disease.

Some foods high in fiber include:

*Bread and cereals -- whole grain flour products, oatmeal and other whole grain cereals, breakfast cereals made from bran and whole grains.

*Fruits -- all fruits, especially when eaten with peel, berries, melons, grapes and dried fruits.

*Beans and Nuts -- mature beans, such as pinto, navy and kidney; mature lima beans, lentils, chick peas; peanuts and peanut butter; almonds, walnuts and other nuts.

*Vegetables -- all vegetables, but especially those with seeds and skin, such as okra, corn, green peas, green beans, tomatoes and cucumbers.

On the average, people eat about 10 to 11 grams of dietary fiber per day. Government guidelines suggest increasing that amount to 20 to 30 grams. However, amounts greater than 35 grams a day can decrease the body's ability to use calcium and other essential minerals such as zinc and iron.

Some ways to include more fiber include eating raw or cooked fruits and vegetables and eating the peeling from apples, cucumber and carrots.

Select whole grain cereals and crackers and brown rice rather than white rice. Top hot cereals and salads with bran cereals. Graham crackers will satisfy a sweet tooth and are much higher in fiber than cookies. Popcorn is a high fiber alternative to potato chips and pretzels.

EXPERIENCE:

NASA has a considerable data base experience in the testing and launching of solid rocket motors. Likewise, NASA also has access to the experience of the Department of Defense. Further, NASA is absolutely committed to protect and preserve the environment including air, water, soils, wildlife, and the fishing in our surrounding area. It goes without saying that NASA must and will comply with all the laws and regulations of the state and federal regulatory agencies.

Since 1964, NASA has launched 142 vehicles using solid propellants. Included in the number were 31 Space Shuttle flights since 1981 from Kennedy Space Center in Florida. A one-per-month launch rate prior to Challenger was achieved and is planned again in the coming months. During each launch, one million pounds of solid propellant, the equivalent to one test planned for Mississippi, is burned in the first 20,000 feet while only 9,000 feet downrange. In other words, each launch roughly equates to one ground test depending on wind direction and speed. Wind direction is no constraint to launch and is usually from offshore onto land.

In all these years, NASA has seen no negative environmental impact of the critical Florida ecological system or wildlife habitat. The habitat which includes the manatee, bald eagle, and approximately 50 other threatened and endangered species.

Likewise, NASA has accomplished firings of the Space Shuttle solid rocket motors at a site in Utah. The site is just four miles from farm lands where crops are grown and cattle are grazed. NASA has extensively monitored many tests with ground instrumentation and aircraft measurements.

The combustion by-products ride the thermal plume up to a 20,000 foot altitude, then become aerosol and dissipate over a very large area, thereby minimizing any threat to human health and the environment. This experience, coupled with advanced field-certified computer modeling efforts, provides NASA with the confidence to test at Stennis Space Center.

TEST AREA:

The test area will be located 6.5 miles from the nearest community.

TEST CONDITIONS:

Before construction of the test stand can occur, air and wetlands permits must be issued to NASA. Once permitted, the single most important environmental criteria for testing will be weather conditions. NASA will use up-to-the-minute weather information before, during, and after the test to ensure that proper atmospheric conditions are present. Both off-site and on-site weather information will be used.

Testing will not occur if rain is predicted within a minimum of two hours of the firing. Wind conditions and atmospheric stability must also meet guidelines to be established by the Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

TEST EFFECTS:

The testing of a single motor will produce a variety of by-products common to the environment including aluminum oxide, carbon dioxide, and water vapor. Hydrogen chloride will also be produced. Test will be performed only under proper weather conditions so that adequate mixing with the surrounding air can occur.

Aluminum Oxide:

The testing of the motor will produce aluminum oxide, not aluminum.

Health Effects: The Environmental Protection Agency is currently reviewing whether aluminum oxide should be removed from the toxic chemical list due to a lack of substantiated toxicity concerns. Although aluminum oxide is considered a nuisance dust, ground level concentrations outside of the immediate test area are projected to be well within safe exposure levels.

There have been allegations that aluminum, not aluminum oxide, has been linked to Alzheimer's Disease. The Environmental Protection Agency, Food and Drug Administration, and numerous medical studies have found no conclusive evidence that aluminum, a common element in our food chain, causes Alzheimer's Disease.

Soils: Experience at other test firing locations indicates minimal deposition of aluminum oxide. Although existing soils in the Gulf Coast area are acidic in nature, they typically contain organic matter which neutralizes the effects of aluminum oxide. A detailed soil sampling network will be established to assure that no adverse soil effects occur.

Hydrogen Chloride:

Gaseous hydrogen chloride will be produced from the test firing. In order for this gas from the test to deposit acid rain that is harmful, the exhaust cloud must come into contact with rain within minutes of the test firing.

A two-hour weather prediction capability is all that is required to ensure that rain does not follow a test. Two hours is well within the technology base according to leading weather experts and the experience of several federal agencies.

Health Effects: Proper weather conditions will ensure that adequate mixing occurs in the upper atmosphere to reduce concentrations of hydrogen chloride to levels well below safe exposure limits.

Soil and Vegetation: Soils in the area are generally acidic in nature. Field experience and computer analyses indicate that concentrations of hydrogen chloride will not measurably change the acidity of existing soils. Furthermore, no vegetation loss or long-term damage will occur.

Surface Water: In the immediate area of the test stand where concentrations will be greatest, runoff control and collection systems will be constructed to contain localized fallout which will be subsequently neutralized to harmless levels.

Computer analyses and experience indicate that the vast majority of airborne hydrogen chloride will be released into the upper atmosphere where reduced concentration will pose no harmful effects to outlying surface water and associated aquatic life.

Acoustics:

The Stennis Space Center was constructed with an adequate buffer zone to ensure proper acoustical protection relating to test firing. The ASRM test stand location was chosen to minimize noise to the surrounding communities. Testing will only be done under proper weather conditions to minimize sound effects related to testing.

A noise monitoring program will also be established to verify actual levels of noise resulting from test firing. Noise levels will be below those experienced during the earlier Saturn stage testing done at SSC in the Apollo program. Public announcements will be made prior to all tests.

Johnson is newest Hancock library board member

Elizabeth Claggett, Diamondhead, chairman of the Hancock County Library System, welcomed Evelyn Johnson as the newly appointed member of the library board.

Johnson, a resident of the Kiln community, was recently appointed to the library system board by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. She fills a vacancy left by Barbara Pursley of Bay St. Louis whose five-year term on the board expired Sept. 30.

"We are extremely pleased to have someone with Mrs. Johnson's background and experience on the board," said Claggett.

The Hancock County Library System Board of Trustees is a five-member, city-county policy-making board established under the laws of Mississippi.

Illegal aliens arrested at welcome center

BY D.C. HARVILL

Eighteen Mexican nationals illegally in the U.S. were taken into custody Thursday at the Hancock County Welcome Center at Highway 607 and Interstate 10.

The illegal aliens were discovered in a van with Texas license plates at the welcome center at approximately 1:30 p.m. after a Welcome Center attendant reported that the driver had been burned when his radiator blew up, according to Sheriff Ronnie Peterson.

The 1979 van apparently had developed radiator trouble and the driver was checking it when the incident occurred. He was transported to Hancock Medical Center by Mobile Medic, where he was treated for burns to the stomach and abdomen, Peterson said.

Upon investigation, it was discovered all 18 passengers of the van were in the country illegally and were on their way to Florida. They remain incarcerated in the Hancock Justice Facility.

Sheriff's Deputy Dennis Tartavouille is assisting with an investigation being conducted by the U.S. Border Patrol.

Bay-Waveland Chapter I seeking more parental involvement at home

BY DENA BISNETTE

When a group of Chapter I instructors and parents meet tonight, they will discuss study skills.

However, the study skills are not just for the students, according to Bay St. Louis-Waveland Schools Chapter I Counselor Barbara Cropp; they are designed to help the parents become more involved in their

When the national Chapter I program was evaluated recently, one of the national goals for improvement turned out to be more parent involvement.

The idea is something of an extension on the old saying, "Education begins in the home." However, getting parents active is not particularly new to Chapter I.

"Chapter I has always

"encourages something we have been trying to do all along."

Chapter I deals with reading and math skills for students in the elementary grades, so Cox and her staff are also sending out a monthly newsletter which includes a calendar of school-related events, Chapter I meetings and workshops and ideas on activities and ways to help children.

return on our parent survey," she said, adding that there are currently about 550 Chapter I students in the district and at St. Clare.

The top items of interest to parents were, in order of most responses first, helping the child with homework, teaching the child responsibility, helping with math skills, building self-esteem, reading to children and creating a home learning environment.

Also generating a high number of responses were child development, understanding computer-assisted instruction, make-and-take learning proctors and aides, but available community resource people will be used as well.

"We have some excellent teachers in the system and hope to have some of them as speakers," Cox added.

Because Cropp, Cox and the Chapter I staff recognize that parents may not have many teaching resources at home, they are setting up a resource center where parents can check out flash cards, teaching toys and other items to use with their children after school.

Cropp explained that the classroom teachers will provide her with information on each bring them," Cox said.

"Maybe, this will give parents the opportunity to provide more books in the home."

"I think part of this new emphasis comes from studies that say schools can't do it all," Cropp explained.

Cox added that from time to time, a nationwide concern over something related to education has favorable results. One example she cited involved studies on the relationships between nutrition and learning.

The studies indicated that students could not learn properly without eating breakfast and children's education by providing ideas on how to help children with homework.

Debbie Cox, Chapter I director, explained that tonight's meeting, which begins at 7 p.m. in the Bay Middle School Auditorium and features Dr. Nancy Metzler of University of Southern Mississippi, is just the first in a series of monthly meetings and workshops for Chapter I parents.

encouraged parental involvement. We have always had a parent advisory council, parents who were involved in planning and implementing our programs," Cox said. "Now we want to get all of our parents involved in helping their children at home."

She explained that a new amendment to Chapter I, the Hawkins-Stafford Amendment, emphasizes such activities and

Some samples from October include setting up a daily study schedule, using a peanut butter-and-jelly sandwich to teach a child about fractions, using grocery ads for a lesson in subtraction and making a jack-o-lantern from a real pumpkin.

Cox said a parent survey had been used to help determine what sort of information parents wanted most.

"We received a 41 percent games, organization and time management and the relationship between nutrition and learning.

Cropp, who plans to meet at least once this year with every child in addition to the telephone contacts she makes with parents and the parent-teacher conferences she attends, said all of these items are possible topics for future meetings.

She added that there is some flexibility available in scheduling conferences after 6 p.m. or on Saturdays for parents who can not make themselves available during the regular school day.

Some of the meetings will be conducted by Chapter I staff members, who in addition to Cropp and Cox include teacher Patricia Bien, secretary Carol Hansell and several classroom child so she can help parents choose appropriate materials.

"We're also setting up a book table at the back of the room during workshops. Anyone who has books their children have outgrown that they want to trade or donate is welcome to otherwise having correct nutrition, and now there are national programs to insure that every student is provided a properly balanced breakfast and lunch.

"This is nationwide, from Barbara Bush and her concerns about literacy to Julie Mabus all the way down. Parents need to be involved. That's the message we're getting," Cox added.

Parents seem to agree as well. The first Chapter I Parents meeting earlier this month had to move out of the library to the middle school auditorium because so many attended.

Babysitting services are being provided at the meetings, but parents who need them are asked to call ahead to give notice of the ages and number of children they are bringing. The Chapter I office number is 467-0444.

Police officer serving as substitute teacher to promote awareness

BY DENA BISNETTE

Students at Bay Junior and Senior High might walk into their classroom at any time and find a policeman taking the place of their teacher.

That police officer is likely to be Don Ocho, a Bay St. Louis Police Department patrol corporal who has, for the past several years, volunteered for programs in various schools and currently serves as Crime Prevention Officer.

Many of the programs he has presented are designed to steer students away from drugs and alcohol.

This year, Principal Rogers James has placed Ocho on his substitute teacher list. His goal is to have the officer teach every seventh grader in the school.

To achieve that, he plans to arrange for a police substitute in required classes, such as English, in order to reach the most students. A list is being kept and those who miss the program will be included in a later presentation.

"We're happy to have him here," said James on a recent occasion when Ocho was teaching. "Of course, we can only do this when we have advance notice that the teacher is going to be out, but maybe we can get through to some of these kids."

Ocho takes roll, then presents programs on alcohol and drugs. So far, he said he has not had trouble keeping their interest.

He talks to them about alcohol, discussing the fact that about one-third of the 9 million alcoholics in the country are teenagers.

"Some of the seemed surprised about the information I gave them, particularly about how many teens are involved," he said after a day as a teacher.

He asks the students how many have tried beer and light wine before sixth grade, and in a recent class, as many as three-quarters of the students admitted having done so. A much smaller number admitted having tried hard liquor.

"Are you scared yet?" he asked after explaining that out of 44,326 youngsters, 33.4 percent have already used beer and wine, while 9.5 percent have already used hard liquor.

He also likes to tell them, when he says that one out of every three deaths between the ages of 16 and 25 is alcohol-related, that the numbers he is telling them about may actually be higher, due to the fact that his statistics are "a little bit old."

He doesn't try to find out how many students may be involved in this type of abuse locally. He did notice that a number of them were interested in talking to him after class, even though their class schedules did not permit much more than a few questions.

The officer found students more aware about drugs and he attributes that partly to news reports about cocaine wars in South America. Most were aware of how cocaine and other drugs are made.

Ocho added that Bay St. Louis is the only police department on the Gulf Coast which has officers working as teachers.

Annual school food drive to help community's needy

All schools in the county will participate in the third annual Food Drive for the benefit of the Hancock County Food Pantry.

When the young people take food to school, they each will receive a coupon good for a free ice cream cone at Waffles.

Jolly Rogers Printing is donating 6,000 flyers, 6,000 coupons and five T-shirts that the winners may paint on the new spin-art machine at the printing office. The prizes will be drawn from the ice cream coupons that are turned into Waffles as participants receive their free ice cream.

Coast Electric will pick up the food at the schools in their yellow trucks Friday, Oct. 27.

The food will be brought to the Food Pantry. Coast Electric drivers will put it into the store room where the Pantry volunteers will sort it.

"This is the third year Coast Electric has done this, and the drive could not go on without their help," said Wilma McMahon, drive chairman.

KARAJAN LEGEND

He rules over a music empire unprecedented in history. From the 1950s until his recent death, Herbert von Karajan reigned as one of the most powerful and renowned concert and opera conductors of all time.

He was named head of the Berlin Philharmonic for life in 1955 and then resigned the post 34 years later amid contract disputes and controversy, but cited health reasons. Three short months later, on July 16, 1989, Herbert von Karajan died of heart failure.

"The Karajan Legend" at 10 p.m., Monday, Oct. 23 on Mississippi ETV, explores the life and legacy of this internationally renowned conductor.

Although his name came to be synonymous with that of the Berlin Philharmonic in his later years, Karajan had a rich and varied career that kept him in constant demand for guest appearances at opera houses and music festivals around the world.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Bay-Waveland Garden Club

The Bay-Waveland Garden Club met Oct. 12 on the park-like grounds at the home of Una Harris for the annual picnic. Hostess chairman Lisa Coward and committee, Helen Price, Bea Lorenzen, Ruth Logan, Muriel Brokmeier, Jeanne Warner, Cindy Lowe and Elmore Burkart, made it all very festive with lots of Halloween decorations and delicious desserts.

The president, Nanette Murphree, opened the business meeting with the Pledge of Allegiance. The devotion and blessing were given by Natalie Lassere with readings of Joyce Kilmer's Trees and other poems.

The president reported that the club was awarded third place at the award luncheon of the Coast Council for the scrapbook which was prepared by Tootlum Byrd.

The members were reminded of the following dates:

Oct. 18, Beautify Welcome Signs, 10 a.m. in Bay St. Louis.
Oct. 19, Landscape Design Symposium by John Davis, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Mississippi Power Company building, Bay St. Louis.

Oct. 21, Crosby Arboretum, Native Plants

Oct. 28, Masked Fun Walk at Bay St. Louis Fitness Trail, 3 p.m.

Nov. 3, Coast Council of Garden Clubs, Diamondhead Baptist Church. Program by Coast Council of Flower Show Judges.

Nov. 4, Plant Sale at Crosby Arboretum.

A program was given by Darlene Underwood, Hancock County Home Economist on getting rid of hazardous waste around the home. It was very interesting and informative on what not to do with old paints, sprays, disinfectants, cleaners, etc. Fact sheets for home reference were available.

The members were asked to bring small pots, 4 to 6 inches, for plants to be given to shut-ins.

Alyce Newkirk reminded members that the Hancock County Food Pantry is a continuing project. All members are expected to bring a donation of one food item or $1 to each meeting. For this month and for November the club requests peanut butter and/or jelly.

Consider space, light before choosing indoor house plants

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

It won't be long until outdoor activities will be moved inside along with houseplants that have spent the summer in shady places such as flower beds, decks or patios. This is also the time for acquiring many new houseplants.

The Mississippi State University Horticulture Club has already held its fall plant sale, and I suspect the Florida trucks loaded with potted, tropical foliage plants will soon appear in parking lots and high traffic areas around the state.

intensities.

Some plants suitable for relatively low-light conditions such as northern oriented windows are Chinese evergreen, cast iron plant, bamboo palm, green philodendrons (the red leaved types require more light,) mother-in-law's tongue and pothos.

In low-light areas a shadow is barely visible and has no outline. Such areas are found away from east, west and south facing windows and under fluorescent lighting.

Popular plants such as schefflera, spider or airplane plant, jade plant, dracaena and corn plant, dumb cane or dieffenbachia and rubber tree all require considerably more light such as would be received in an east or west facing window.

There should be enough light to read by without artificial light, and there should be definite shadows but with fuzzy outlines.

Plants requiring higher light intensities such as available in a south facing window are zebra, pony tail, croton, crown-of-thorns, weeping fig, Norfolk Island pine and cacti. Most of the plants tolerant of medium-light levels grow better in high light.

Weeping fig is one of the most popular and widely available indoor green plants. This is probably because it is easy to propagate and grows rapidly into a tree form in Florida, the main production area.

This plant responds rapidly to changes in its growing conditions by dropping its leaves, and in just a couple of weeks, a beautiful plant can become just a few bare stems and branches. The two biggest problems with weeping fig are placement where the plant doesn't receive enough light and too dry an atmosphere.

All indoor plants should be in containers with a hole in the bottom to provide drainage for water. Believe it or not, over-watering probably kills more indoor plants than any other single cause.

Plants growing in plastic pots do not dry as rapidly as plants in clay pots and therefore require less water. All plant pots must have a saucer beneath them to catch the excess water to prevent damage to carpets, floors and furniture. Plants tolerant of relatively dry soils are pony tail palm, succulents such as jade and sedum, and snake plant also known as mother-in-law's tongue.

Plants less tolerant of dry soils are Chinese evergreen, Norfolk Island pine, cast-iron plant, schefflera, spider plant, dracaena, weeping fig, rubber tree, palms and philodendrons. Most ferns require that the soil be kept moist, but no soggy.

Fertilizing indoor plants is a tricky affair, and the best way to deal with the situation is to be very cautious. Since most indoor growing conditions are not ideal for plants, the less growth the plants make the better.

When light is insufficient, which it usually is, new growth is likely to be spindly and unattractive. Therefore, it is best to go easy on fertilizer that can induce new growth.

in Mississippi Gardens

There are many different plants to choose among when looking for something to decorate the home, apartment or dorm room. When selecting a plant, one very important item to consider is the amount of light available in the location where the plant is expected to grow.

Foliage plants do not grow successfully in dark locations, and plants expected to flower require relatively high light

Autumn leaves more abundant in north

If it's the vivid colors of autumn you're looking for, you had best head north, and soon.

While the northern counties of Mississippi experience the colorful changes of the landscape, central and southern counties usually only get a hint of fall's leaf colors.

"The most vivid displays of color can be found from Tennessee to Vermont, where there is a more definite change in the seasons than we have in Mississippi," said Dr. Andy Ezell, forestry specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Some people believe the changing of leaf color is the result of frost, but leaves often begin to turn before the first frost. The Indians thought it was because the celestial hunters had slain the Great Bear, and his blood dripping on the forests changed many trees to red.

But changing leaf color is the normal chemical process of trees preparing for winter. During the spring and summer the leaves serve as factories where foods necessary for the trees' growth are manufactured.

This food-making is carried on by small green bodies called chlorophyll—thus the green color of leaves.

As cooler temperatures arrive, the food-making processes slow down, chlorophyll stops dominating leaf color and other pigments show through—thus the reds, yellows and golds of fall.

"A cool, moist fall will enhance leaf color," Ezell said. "And, early cool spells will push up the timetable for peak leaf color."

Ezell said leaves in north Mississippi should reach their peak this fall before Oct. 21.

Some of the trees with the most brilliant display of color are black gum and sourwood, which turn a vibrant red; sweet gum, which displays a variety of colors including wine, red, deep purple and yellow; dogwood leaves turn orange and red; and walnut provides yellow in the landscape.

Ezell said the oak varieties have less color than most other hardwoods and usually turn from green to brown with some orange color seen in the process.

The conifers—pines, spruces, firs, cedars and hemlocks—do not have a definite time for leaf shedding. Their green color takes on a slightly brownish tinge, which gives way to a lighter color in the spring.

While many of the colorful varieties are found in Mississippi, the climate is the influencing factor that may lead Mississippians to go north for the fall.

Waveland Animal Shelter offers incentive during October—'Adopt-a-Dog' Month

The dog days of summer may well be over, but dog days are just beginning at Waveland Animal Shelter and more than 900 other shelters nationwide.

On behalf of these shelters and the more than 13 million dogs that end up homeless each year, Meaty Bone Dog Biscuits and Jerky Treats Dog Snacks are sponsoring the ninth annual Adopt-A-Dog Month campaign in October.

"This month-long effort draws attention to the numbers of perfectly healthy, beautiful puppies and dogs that end up at our shelter, as well as others, each year," said Ed Abson, manager of Waveland Animal Shelter. "It's unfortunate that, nationwide, only 27 percent of these homeless dogs are ever adopted. This program aims to better that figure at all shelters."

The Waveland Animal Shelter is open to potential adopters from Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. And as an added incentive for those considering adoption, all October dog adopters will receive a "doggie bag" filled with a congratulatory letter, dog skills training booklet, Jerky Treats and Meaty Bone samples and coupons for more products.

Also in the doggie bags, new dog adopters will find an entry form for the 1990 Poster Dog Contest, a chance to win from $500 to $5,000 and a year's supply of Meaty Bone and Jerky Treats.

Any adopted dog is eligible to enter the fourth annual contest which names one dog to serve as an example of the types of wonderful pets available in shelters across the country.

"We would encourage anyone in the area who has ever adopted a dog to pick up an entry form at our shelter as the sponsors will also be awarding cash grants to the shelters from which the dogs were adopted," Abson said.

Entry forms are also available by writing to Meaty Bone/Jerky Treats, 211 East Ontario, Suite 1300, Chicago, IL 60611.

Deadline for entries is Feb. 15, 1990.

Anyone interested in adopting a dog from the Waveland Animal Shelter will receive special attention and assistance from the staff.

"We like to spend a lot of time with new adopters, helping them to make the right choice for their family and matching them with an appropriate pet," explained Abson.

The Waveland Animal Shelter is happy to answer any questions about adopting a dog. For more information, call 467-0230.

Library system receives $32,400 literacy grant

Governor Ray Mabus has announced the awarding of a $32,400 literacy grant to the Hancock County Library System. The local library system is one of only 39 agencies statewide to receive the federal Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) funds, awarded through the Governor's Office for Literacy.

According to Prima Wusnack, library system director, the grant will supplement local library funds received from Hancock County and the cities of Waveland and Bay St. Louis to provide literacy training to county residents. The library administration established the literacy program in 1987.

"These literacy programs are the backbone of our efforts to give each and every adult in Mississippi the basic skills needed in life, and are one of the best sources of literacy training within our communities," Governor Mabus said.

"The ability to read and write means the ability to get and keep a good job. It also means improving the quality of life for many of our citizens," the governor said.

An estimated 400,000 adult Mississippians, approximately one in five cannot read nor write at a functional level.

All programs selected for funding provide literacy training that is comprehensive in nature because participants will receive basic skills as well as job-related reading and writing skills.

According to Wusnack, this year's program will incorporate many instructional methods.

The new methods will make it easier to train volunteer tutors who work one on one with students as well as better meet the needs of the students.

An educational plan will be established for each participant that sets goals and takes into account the individual's specific needs. The curriculum will include writing and remedial mathematics.

Teaching methods will use small-group and computer-assisted instruction, along with one-on-one tutoring when necessary.

All participants must be out of school, with reading levels below the ninth grade. At least 75 percent must be from low-income households, in accordance with JTPA guidelines.

The current program has been funded through June 30, 1990. For more information, contact Prima Wusnack, library system director, or Ruth Krebs, literacy coordinator, at 467-5282.

ON ETV

PRECIOUS BANE
Stanley Baldwin, British prime minister in the 1920s, was not known as a literary critic. But his enthusiastic appraisal of Precious Bane, a novel by English author Mary Webb, converted what had been a little-known work into an immediate success.

"Precious Bane" will come to Mississippi ETV when "Masterpiece Theatre" presents a two-part adaptation at 9 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 22, and 9 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 29.

"Precious Bane" is the story of Prue Sarn, a young woman born with a disfiguring harelip (the "bane" of the title) into the harsh world of rural 19th-century England. Janet McTeer stars in Prue's poignant saga, replete with witchcraft, superstitions, folklore and murder.

TREUTEL PROMOTED—Navy Lt. j.g. Paul J. Treutel, center, was recently promoted to the rank of Lieutenant. He is communications officer for naval commands and activities at the Naval Surface Warfare Center, Dahlgren, Va. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Treutel of Bay St. Louis and is a 1978 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School. From left are Commanding Officer Capt. H. W. Turner, Lt. Treutel and Jill Treutel.

Mississippi's counties show population decline evidence

Well over two-thirds of Mississippi's counties experienced declines in population from 1987 to 1988, according to the latest report from the Commerce Department's Census Bureau.

The two counties experiencing the greatest declines were Hinds and Harrison. Even though Hinds County remained the largest in terms of population, at 253,300, it also had the greatest decline in population of 2,900.

Harrison County's population declined by 2,200, leaving an estimated population of 171,400. Issaquena County remained the state's least populous county with an estimated population of 2,200.

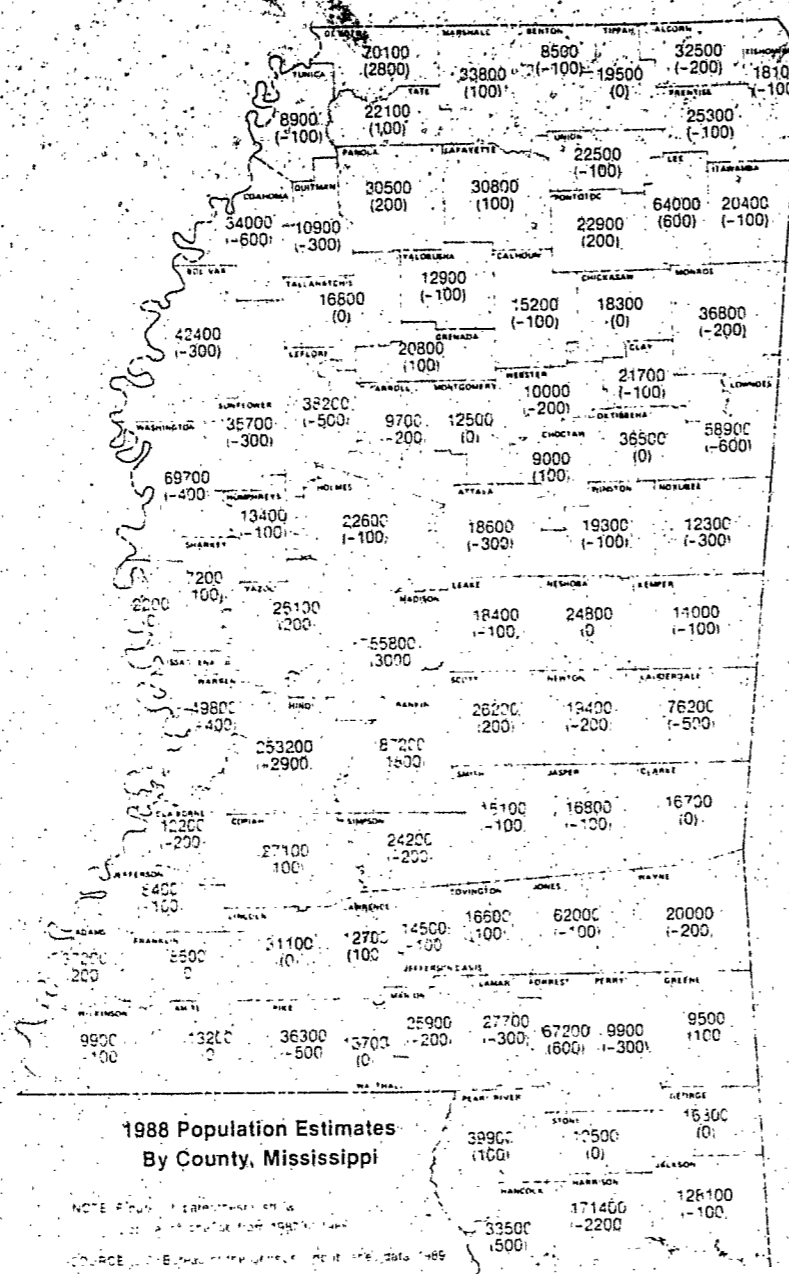

On the other hand, Madison County represented the largest population increase in the state, increasing by 3,000 to 55,800. DeSoto County experienced the second largest increase of 2,800, and Rankin County increased by 1,800.

Additionally, two of Mississippi's four metropolitan statistical areas (MSAs) reflected evidence of population increases from 1987 to 1988, while the other two MSAs showed declines. Memphis MSA (which includes DeSoto County in Mississippi) increased by 2,800 and Jackson MSA (Hinds, Madison, and Rankin counties) increased by 1,900.

The two Gulf Coast MSA's experienced population declines; Biloxi-Gulfport (Hancock and Harrison counties) decreased by 1,700, and Pascagoula (Jackson County) decreased by 100.

The most recent national Census estimates indicate that Mississippi's population declined in 1988, primarily as a result of net out-migration, which exceeded natural growth.

JOHN HARRIS of Coldwell Banker, Nell Frisbie Realtors has been named top selling and listing agent for August and top selling agent for September. August was the first time Harris, who was named the company's 1988 top producer, had received both designations. Harris is a member of the West Gulf Coast Realtors' Association Million Dollar Club.

Burris named Crimestopper's Officer of Month

Lt. Robert Burriss with the Biloxi Department of Public Safety was selected by Crimetoppers as its 'Officer Of The Month' for September.

Recent success with identifying suspects in a rash of burglaries resulted in 26 charges filed. This was only possible through Lt. Burriss' endless hours and tireless efforts.

Mississippi Coast Crimestoppers is a Gulf Coast tri-county community program geared toward public involvement in the fight against crime through a toll-free hotline of 1-800-433-TIPS.

Frisbie, Thiac, Boyd attend realtors meet

Nell Frisbie, Rachael Thiac and Bobby Boyd with Coldwell Banker Nell Frisbie Inc., were among more than 300 persons who attended the Mississippi Association of Realtors' 64th annual convention held at the Peabody Hotel in Memphis, Oct. 11-15.

The group attended educational seminars and sessions on real estate tax, marketing strategies, listing and sales, agency relations, commercial sales, issues related to the real estate industry and the economy, professionalism, ethics and specialty education, an update on legal and legislative issues facing the real estate industry, and the importance of political participation.

The Mississippi Association of Realtors is a statewide professional association representing more than 3,600 members of some 26 local realtor boards in Mississippi. Hancock County is served by the West Gulf Coast Board of Realtors.

10B-THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1989

SECTION

Time Out

By Dena Bisnette

Well, I was all set to watch what I could of the World Series. I'm not a particular fan of either team but I have always been intrigued by the legends about the strange winds in Candlestick Park.

The only thing I can say about this earthquake is—forget the wind, because this definitely tops it.

The earthquake is a tragedy, it's true, but it's also one for the sports history books.

At presstime for this section of The Sea Coast Echo, no announcement has been made regarding when and where the series will resume.

Although it probably can't be arranged, I wouldn't mind seeing the Giants and the A's invited to New Orleans to play in the Superdome.

It's a neutral field, and you never know. Maybe some of the people who would come down south to watch baseball would visit Hancock County.

Local winners in Saturday's Run into Autumn at Pascagoula include Jim Turcotte of Bay St. Louis, who took the grand master's title with a time of 19:08; Mark Koch of Bay St. Louis, first in the 25-29 division with 18:25; Herbert Smith of Pass Christian, first in the 45-49 with 21:13; and Jo Anne Mumme of Waveland, second place in the women's 50-and-over with 33:34.

University of Southern Mississippi's basketball team will be featured in a fundraiser at B. Frank Brown Gym in Gulfport on Nov. 1.

The Eagles will play an intrasquad scrimmage, with proceeds from the $3 tickets to go to the Long Beach-Gulfport Optimist Club.

By the way, local elementary, junior high and high school players will be presented in a slam dunk and hot shot competition at halftime, but I don't know yet if any players from the schools over here have entered.

Tennis alert! The "People Caring for Pass Christian Open Mixed Doubles Tournament is accepting entries. The event will begin at 9 a.m. at the tennis courts behind Pass Christian's War Memorial Park.

The entry fee is $10 and a can of balls for each team. To enter, call Cynthia Allen at 452-2251.

Don't forget the March of Dimes benefit "WalkAmerica" Saturday.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. with the walk beginning at 9 a.m. It begins at the foot of the Bay bridge and will end at Buccaneer State Park.

For more information, contact Sheriff Ronald Peterson at 467-5101 or Betsy Ashman at 467-5496.

Congratulations to Myron Labat Jr. of Bay St. Louis. He was selected to participate in United State Tennis Association Player Development program over the weekend at Jackson.

The program accepts only the best of Mississippi's junior players.

This week, Cycles Plus Bicycle Club will ride the Airy Lake Loop. Riders will meet at the Desoto Park Recreation Area at 9 a.m. for the 25-mile trip and should bring a picnic lunch for after the ride.

Anybody who uses the Hancock County Fitness Track might want to help with the beautification project that got rained out last week. It has been rescheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday.

Participants are asked to bring rakes, shovels and wheelbarrows because the ground there is being prepared for planting.

The Hancock County Recreation Association's Men's Basketball League and Men's Over 35 League are still accepting registrations through Nov. 3.

Anyone interested in organizing a team or playing should call 467-0470 after 6:30 p.m. or send their name, address, and phone number to 1017 Lincoln Drive, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520, so association members may contact them.

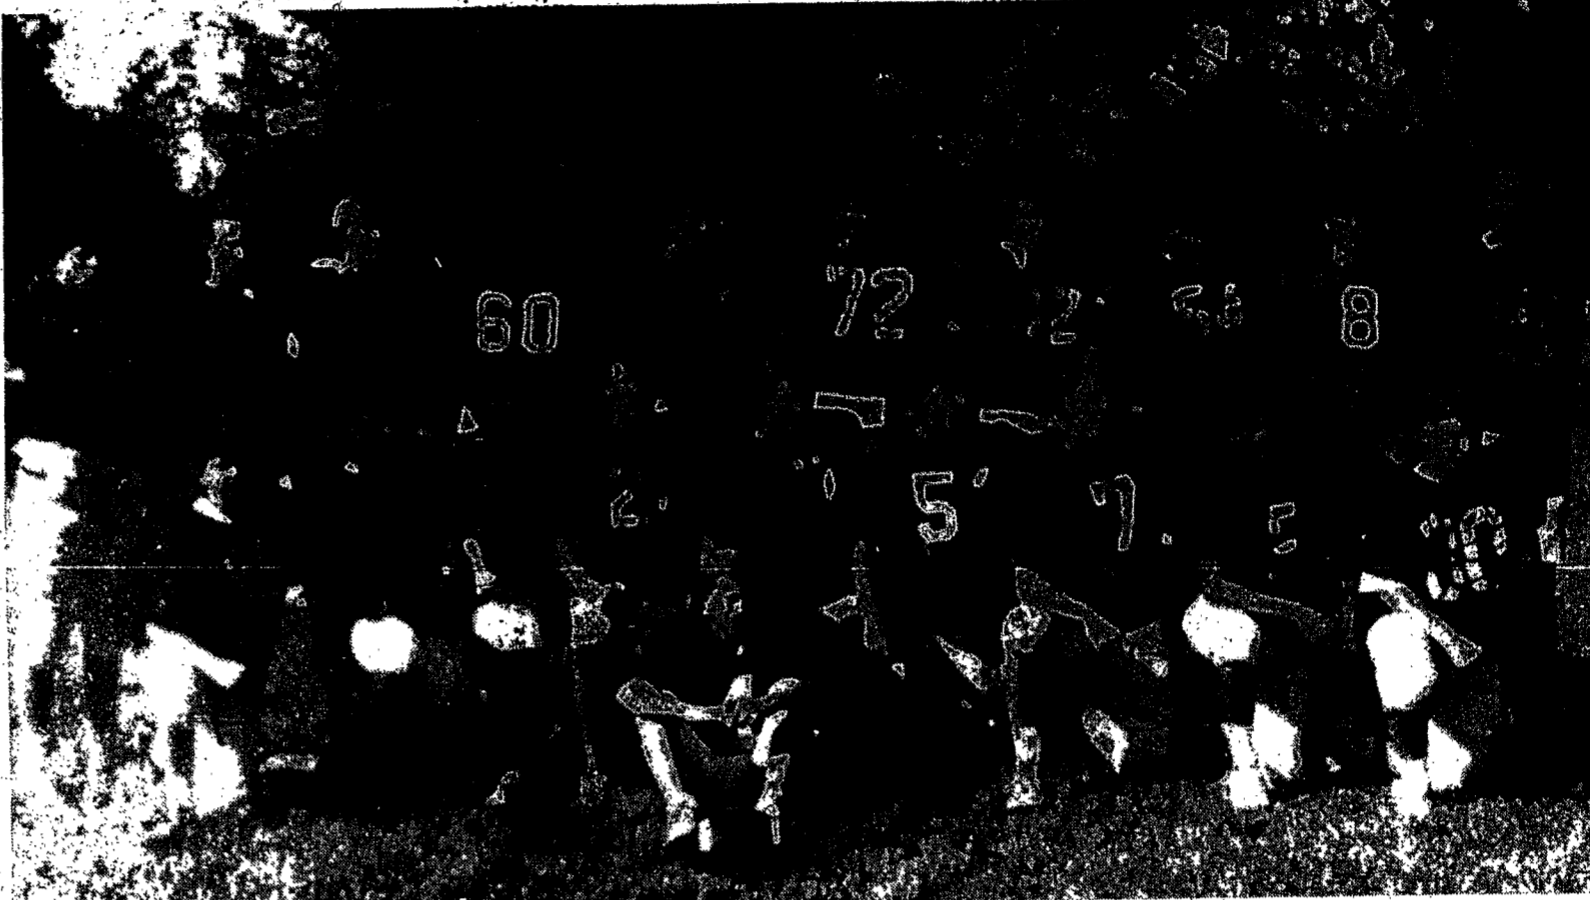

The season opener is tentatively scheduled for Nov. 5.

The Gulf Coast Fall Track and Field Classic will be Saturday, Oct. 28, at the Gulfport High Track. Registration begins at 4:30 p.m. and events begin at 5 p.m.

Fees vary with the number of events entered. Age divisions include youth to 85-and-over, so there's room for everybody who lie to compete in traditional track and field events.

For information, contact Jim Rose at 863-1904 or Sharon Ryan at 863-1816.

The deadline for submissions to Time Out is noon Tuesday, for publication in the following Thursday's paper. Short items may be submitted by telephoning Dena Bisnette at 467-5474, or may be brought in or mailed to The Sea Coast Echo.

Rocks vie for playoffs

The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws' come-from-behind win, 16-12, over the visiting St. Martin Yellowjackets last Friday, put them back in the running for a shot at post-season play.

"In spite of some costly mistakes, we played a more consistent game offensively and defensively," Rock head football coach Ken Lyons said after the game.

"We were down 2-12. Our guys could have folded, but instead they came back and won the game. I would especially like to compliment them for their second half of play."

But the Rocks don't have a lot of time to relish their victory over the Jackets. Next up is d'Iberville. And the outcome of that game decides who will be the second place team among the Division VIII 4-A teams: Stanislaus, St. Martin or d'Iberville.

A win by d'Iberville will give the three teams identical 2-2 records in district, and the second place team will be decided on overall district records and point spreads.

In preparing for d'Iberville, the Rocks have a couple of factors weighing against them. For one, the euphoria of the St. Martin win could affect their preparation.

For another, this is quarter exam week at Stanislaus, and that might present some problems.

The Rocks are still working on their game plan for the Warriors. "We still haven't solidified our game plan," Lyons said at press time.

And a final factor. The game will be played at d'Iberville. If the Rock-A-Chaws win, they will take sole possession of second place and will be pitted against another 4-A team in another division. Those pairing will be decided after all the results are in.

Game time for this week's game is 7:30 p.m. at Warrior Stadium.

Tigers hungry for win; meet St. Martin Friday

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Bay High Tigers expect a tough game Friday night when they host the St. Martin Yellowjackets.

"St. Martin has been a real good team. They've been in every game they've played," Tigers Coach Dodd Lee said.

According to the coach, the Tigers will stick to their strategic guns.

"We believe in it. We are going to keep trying to polish it and getting better each week," Lee said.

The Yellowjackets, going into Friday's game with a 5-2 record, run a multiple offense and defense.

"They give a lot of different looks. They have so much balance—they play well as a unit," the coach said.

Seven games into the season, the Tigers remain winless.

Lee said Tigers to watch are Willie Moody, the team's leading tackler, and the offensive line.

The line did a good job against Stone County, he said.

Kickoff is 7:30 at Tiger stadium.

Hawks to travel to Wayne County for first game with new opponent

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock North Central's Hawks travel to Wayne County Friday night to take on a football team they have never played before.

The 4-A Hawks will play Wayne County, a newly consolidated 5-A school, under a two-year contract that calls for another game next year. This year's game was picked up to fill an open slot on the schedule.

Head Coach Irvin Favre said the Hawks may be facing a team that could give them trouble, particularly since the only scouting he has been able to do has been from films and films can be misleading.

"We know a St. Stanislaus, a Bay St. Louis. We don't know this team at all," he said.

Favre called Wayne County a "power team rather than a team with a lot of finesse."

The school has picked up players from Beat Four, Clara, Buckatunna and Waynesboro Central, all of which have been football powerhouses in the area over the years.

"Offensively, they are power run-oriented," Favre said.

"They like to line up with two tight ends in a Power I and run right at you."

Most of the players are tall, with rangy build, but outweigh the Hawks.

"They may be a job for us. We're going to need to play good hard-nosed defense against a team like that."

"They don't throw as much but when they do throw they throw deep on you, and that's of some concern to us."

"They'll really a simple football team, and one of the easiest types to scout. They don't try to be fancy and don't have any gimmick plays. They just play hard-nosed football and if you can't handle it, you're in trouble," the coach said.

"Wayne County also tries to field every kick. They don't fool with letting it roll dead; they're going to try to pick it up and run."

"These teams can sometimes give you problems, and we're hoping our defense, which has been doing a real good job for us lately, can rise up again."

In spite of the fact that the Hawks have already grabbed the district title, won the right to host the first play-off game, gone 4-0 in district play and remain 7-0 for the season, Favre said, "We're really not that good a football team."

Always looking for improvements, Favre found some last week, particularly in the Hawk's kicking game as they defeated the struggling Long Beach Bearcats.

The Hawks went five for five in kicking and also showed a better pass defense than in previous games.

Local team members place in skateboarding

BY DENA BISNETTE

All members of Hancock County's own skateboarding group, Team Holocaust, placed during the group's most recent competition.

Some will travel to Gulfport to compete in against teams there within the next few weeks, but another local competition is being planned for Dec. 2.

Reggie Sevin, first place winner and one of the original organizers of Team Holocaust, said the competition also added four new members to the group, which is the only one of its kind in the Bay St. Louis and Waveland area.

The team was organized last summer and named Team Holocaust because "some of us were just sitting around one day and decided it would be a cool, aggressive name," Sevin said.

"We did it to show everybody that Bay St. Louis and Waveland aren't just a bunch of little kids."

He also said participating in skateboarding "is a good way to keep out of trouble."

So far, the team has members ages 13 to 18, but Sevin said younger members are welcome if they're good at skateboarding.

Fishing the fall transition

It's that time of year when bass are biting active. They're aggressive, they hit a lot of different lures, and you find them in a lot of different places, primarily in shallow water.

You hope.

Autumn is really one of the prime seasons to catch bass, explains Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler Larry Nixon, "but like all bass fishing, it can be tough, too."

I think the main thing to remember about bass fishing this time of year is that because the fish are moving actively and in transition, patterns are likely to change during the day. What works well in the morning probably won't work at midday.

Being able to adjust and change with the fish is the key to catching them this time of year.

Nixon's favorite fishing spots this time of year include weedbeds, open cover in the backs of coves, and the edges of standing timber.

"In the mornings I work weedbeds with topwater lures, particularly a buzzbait or a fast-moving spinnerbait," says the Evinrude pro. "I keep the lure moving fast because the bass are usually pretty active, and work the edge of the grasslines."

If he can't locate vegetation, Nixon works stumps, stickups or logs in the backs of coves. He likes water three to four feet deep, and tries to find cover near deeper channels. Crankbaits, spinnerbaits and worms are his lure choices.

"Later in the day the pattern often changes," explains the well-known tournament angler. "You may have to switch to a crankbait and work underwater ridges, stumpy points, or rocky riprap around bridges and dams.

"Look for baitfish activity in places like this, because the bass are feeding heavily, as if to stock up for the winter," and where you find bait you'll also find bass. Often, you'll find schools of bass, so make certain you fish each area thoroughly."

Another form of structure Nixon may look for is standing timber, which is present on many lakes.

"You don't fish the timber itself," warns Nixon, "but instead, key on its outside edges. Baitfish usually swim along the edges of the trees, and the bass follow."

"When I'm working standing timber like this, I look for old creek channels, roadbeds, or anything that may run through the timber to produce an edge.

"Depth changes are also important, and when you can find an edge where the depth also changes, you have a potential hotspot for bass."

Water temperature at this time of year is quite possibly the most critical factor affecting bass behavior, explains Nixon.

"During the summer when water temperatures are warm, bass are not as active," the Evinrude pro notes. "In many lakes the bass stay deep and are hard to find."

"When the water temperature cools to about 70 degrees, these fall patterns in shallow water start. They continue until the water temperature falls to around 50 degrees. The bass gradually become less and less active as they start leaving the shallow water for deeper winter structure.

"In most parts of the country, this fall season lasts a minimum of several weeks: While it's in progress, it's certainly one of the most enjoyable times to be out fishing."

DWFP sets fish measurement standards

Heard the latest angler poetry? It goes like this: How shall I measure my fish? Let me count the ways.

It seems that some Mississippi fishermen have misunderstood how to measure a fish, according to officials with the state Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

This means that how a fish is measured can put the fish inside or outside a slot, limit or over a length limit.

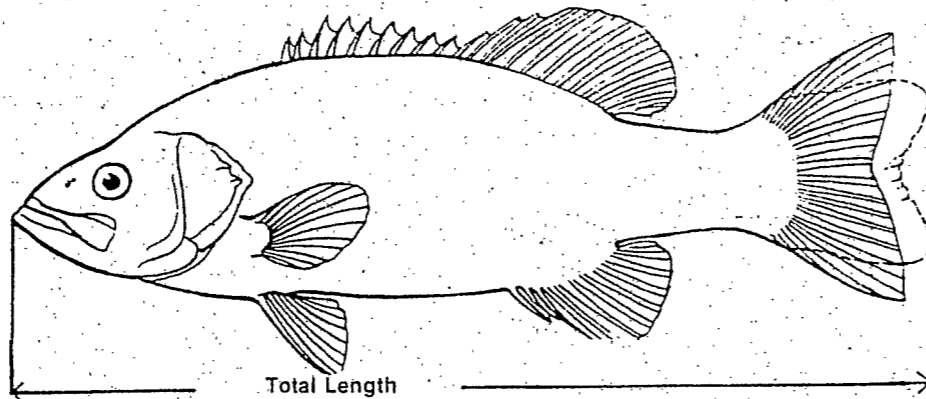

Slot and length limits are methods used by fisheries biologists to regulate the catch of bass or other fish to improve fishing.

"In the past, some people measured a fish with its mouth closed and its tail spread apart," said Ron Garavelli, DWFP chief of fisheries. "Other anglers would measure their fish with its mouth closed and the tail squeezed together."

Garavelli said that in order to be consistent in enforcing slot and length limits in all areas of the state, department personnel will measure fish as prescribed by professional fish management textbooks.

Garavelli explained that the correct total length of a fish is measured with the fish's mouth closed, and its tail squeezed together to give a maximum overall measurement.

The measuring procedure is a standardized practice and is professionally recognized by fish managers nationwide, Garavelli said.

Total length is measured with fish mouth closed and tail squeezed together to give maximum overall measurement.

ON ETV

IQUITOS

On the edge of the Peruvian jungle, 2,300 miles up the Amazon River, Iquitos was once one of the world's most isolated cities. But the rubber boom at the turn of the century turned the tiny fishing village into a cosmopolitan city where European millionaires sipped French cognac and shipped their evening clothes to London to be laundered. Their fortunes were bought with the freedom of the local Indians, who still remember the atrocities of the rubber barons.

Today, Iquitos is a city of medicine men, pink dolphins and satellite television, were legend and myth are valued as much as—if not more than—fact and reality.

Novelist and politician Mario Vargas Llosa serves as an "interpreter" of this romantic and exotic land when "Travels" visits this lush tropical hamlet at 8 p.m., Monday, Oct. 23 on Mississippi ETV.

"Iquitos" uses rare archival footage and photographs, as well as interviews with the unusual people of the upper Amazon, to trace Iquitos' magical and oftentimes gruesome history.

Ole Miss slates Homecoming weekend activities

When the Ole Miss Rebels take on the Vanderbilt Commodores during The University of Mississippi's Homecoming football game Saturday, Oct. 28, in Vaught-Hemingway Stadium, not all the action will take place on the gridiron.

Activities centered around Ole Miss' Homecoming game include a production of the musical "Sweet Charity," the induction of four outstanding graduates into the school's Alumni Hall of Fame, and reunions for former Ole Miss cheerleaders, band members, psychology majors and members of the 1969 Delta Gamma pledge class.

Ole Miss students will kick off the school's Homecoming festivities with a pep rally on the Oxford Square Thursday, Oct. 26, at 7 p.m.

Friday's activities include a 4 p.m. performance by the Glee Club in front of the Ole Miss Union and a 4 p.m. colloquium by psychology faculty members in room 206 of Peabody Hall.

The seminar, which brings the psychology department's first annual Alumni Reunion Weekend, focuses on drug dependence and will be followed by a reception for psychology graduates.

Also beginning Friday is this year's Homecoming musical, "Sweet Charity," with performances through Saturday at 8 p.m. in Fulton Chapel. Tickets may be purchased at the Central Ticket Office in the Union or at the door, subject to availability.

The school's four Alumni Hall of Fame inductees will also be honored Friday with a public reception in the Alumni House auditorium at 6 p.m. The inductees are Dr. Frank A. Anderson of Oxford; Hardy Moore Graham of Union City, Tenn.; Dr. Hunter Lee Little of Palo Alto, Calif.; and former Gov. William F. Winter of Jackson.

The "Annual Alumni Exhibit" which features artworks by Ole Miss alumni, may be viewed from 8:15 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Thursday and Friday and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday in the Bryant Hall Fine Arts Gallery. A public reception honoring the artists will be held in the gallery at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

Another exhibit, "Southern Tack," includes items from the personal collection of Dr. Charles Wilson, co-editor of the "Encyclopedia of Southern Culture." The University Museum's exhibit may be viewed from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Saturday's events include a 9 a.m. reunion for former Ole Miss cheerleaders on the lawn of the Alumni House, a 9 a.m.

reception for the accountancy school's alumni in room 403 of the Union, and an 11 a.m. reunion in The Grove for members of the 1969 Delta Gamma pledge class. In another part of The Grove, Oxford Jazz will provide free entertainment at 10:30 a.m.

The Ole Miss Alumni Band will also perform Saturday. Ole Miss alumni are invited to stop by the Alumni Association's Hospitality Tent on the Alumni House lawn Saturday between 8:30 a.m. and noon and to attend the association's general meeting at 10 a.m. in the Alumni House auditorium.

CEHS Raiders fall to Rosemark

The Coast Episcopal High School Raiders lost again last Saturday night to the Rosemark Academy Rebels from Tennessee 18-7.

The only Raider score came on a 24-yard run by senior Scott Covode. The point after was good by senior Billy Guice.

"Our defense as a whole played well, except for three big plays," said Raider Coach Jack Hutchison. At the half the Raiders were down 12-0, and at the end of the third quarter the score was 12-7.

Hutchison said, "We did not execute big third down plays

We hurt ourselves twice in the second half with two big penalties."

Hutson Lambert had a big game defensively with 16 tackles, said Hutchison.

Other outstanding efforts were turned in by sophomore Gib Werby with nine carries for 54 yards and Scott Covode with six carries for 34 yards.

The Coast Episcopal Raiders play their last season game against Parkview Academy from Port Sulphur this Saturday night at the St. Stanislaus field. Kickoff is at 7 p.m.

his team's 130 yards in penalties, which he called "entirely too many," and felt "a few too many fumbles" also marred their performance.

He was impressed with his younger players, who took over after Terrence Goff and Don Hunter were injured. Both veterans remain doubtful for Friday's game.

The Hawks are again ranked seventh in the state by the Associated Press Sportswriters' Poll and their goal now is an undefeated season.

It has been a long time for Hancock, their coach said. The Hawks have not had an undefeated season since they went 10-0 in 1977.

Favre said the ride to the game takes about two hours. To get to Wayne County, take I-59 north, get on Highway 84 east and drive about 35 miles. The stadium is on the left as an east-bound vehicle passes through Waynesboro.

Change Oranges (AND EVERYTHING ELSE!) into Apples at Jitney!

NO LIMIT ON COMPUTERS!

PROGRAM STARTS TODAY!

FREE

COMPUTERS FOR SCHOOLS WITH JITNEY'S NEW

"Apples for the Students" Program

Jitney Jungle is pleased and excited to announce our participation in the new "Apples for the Students" program. In this program, all schools in the communities which we serve can collect your Jitney Jungle "pink" register tapes, then turn them in to us to receive Apple computers, printers, educational software and teacher training — at absolutely NO COST to the school or school district!

Our "Apples for the Students" Program will be in effect over the next 28 weeks, from today through April, 1990. All Jitney Jungle "pink" register tapes submitted within these dates are valid.

We at Jitney Jungle recognize the growing need for computer equipment in all of our schools, and wanted to sponsor a program that would have the maximum benefit to this area's school systems.

This program is unique, because Apple computers are overwhelmingly the choice of schools for educating students.

For information on your school's progress, call Luther Roan in Jackson at 949-5347 or

1-800-748-9598.

It's easy as 1-2-3.

1. Collect Jitney's "pink" register tapes.
2. Donate tapes to the school of your choice.
3. Jitney will ship a FREE computer directly to the school at no cost.
